

A Respected New Name in the Languedoc Region!

"This is a domaine that should be added to our list of Leading producers of the Languedoc Roussillon"

Jancis Robinson, MW, Purple Pages

"Charles & Ruth Simpson, who are based in the Languedoc, aim to produce clean-cut modern wines using New World methods, and succeed admirably."

John Wilson, Irish Times,

"Neat and tidy set of well-made, well-packaged wines!"

Andrew Jefford, MW,

"Charles and Ruth Simpson left Blighty to make wine at their Languedoc Estate and almost every one has been a winner."

Jane MacQuitty, The Times,

"Charles and Ruth Simpson bought this property in the Languedoc in 2002 and have made a range of well-conceived, modern reds and whites there, building up a following..."

Jancis Robinson MW, Purple Pages

"...a gorgeous southern French property owned by an adventurous Brit couple."

Matthew Jukes, Daily Mail,

"Tasting whites like these, I think it's the Australians, not the French, who should worry."

Tim Atkin, The Observer

" Since purchasing the estate in 2002, Charles and Ruth Simpson have created some amazing wines and are gaining accolades from around the world."

Justin Howard-Sneyd MW, Waitrose Wine Direct

"I have to say that the overall quality of these wines is excellent. The Simpson's intent is clear in their stylish packaging, and the wines live up to the promise in the bottle. These are decidedly modern wines, with full extraction and plenty of oak in some cuvées, yet the expression of the grape varieties and terroir of the south is not lost."

Tom Cannavan, wine-pages.com